

Dear Say Yes to Education college student:

Each year, BMO Capital Markets, a Say Yes partner organization, sponsors the BMO Student Internship Program (BSIP). BMO Student Internship Program (BSIP) is more than just a summer job – it is how students gain professional work experience and apply their education to help BMO change the way the world banks. BSIP provides work-integrated learning opportunities for students, and then converts them to full-time positions at graduation.

Diversity & inclusion is a core value at BMO and they understand the importance of learning from differences through their search for great talent. Each year, BMO hires 1,200 students and new grads into the BMO Student Internship Program. Last year, BSIP was rated as exceptional by students and was the most diverse group to date.

Our partners at BMO are sharing this posting with Say Yes to Education, hoping to recruit students that are interested in the broader financial services industry (excluding Capital Markets). Here are the attached links with information on how to apply directly for specific areas:
